DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 5-8 are pending. Claims 1-4 have been canceled according to the preliminary amendment filed on 9-25-2003.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 5-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The instant method of inhibiting a urease activity or inhibiting a Helicobacter pylori activity reaches out to as yet unidentified conditions/activities/disorders, the description of which are not found in the specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 5-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification is only enabling for the treatment of ulcer with the inventive compound.

The court holds that claims directed to mediating a biological pathway are devoid of identifiable utility and are therefore not useful. Unless the pathway at issue is critical to treating some condition and the pathway modification and disease treatment are inexorably linked, such pathway modification is devoid of utility. The instant claim directed to a mechanism of inhibiting a urease activity or a Helicobacter pylori activity without the end result would therefore have no practical utility unless the inhibition of any urease or any Helicobacter pylori activity and the treatment of ulcer are inexorably linked. Since the claims as recited embrace any degree of inhibition of any urease or any Helicobacter pylori activity, which may or may not inexorably linked to the treatment of ulcer, the scope of the claims is therefore not commensurate with that of the objective enablement, especially in view of the absence of a full written description of the as yet unidentified conditions/activities/disorders which the recited mechanism reaches out to. One of ordinary skill in the art therefore would not be able to use the inventive compound as claimed without undue experimentation.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 5-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hirai (JP 04077476, PTO-1449). The 1,2-benzisothiazol-3-(2H)-one (English abstract; also page 15, Table 1, Example 2) in the pharmaceutical composition for treating ulcer (English abstract) would inherently inhibit the urease and act as an anti-Helicobacter pylori agent as recited in the instant claims, since it is well known in the art that Helicobacter pylori is the culprit of peptic ulcer disease.

Applicant maintains that Hirai does not specifically teach the inhibition of urease activity or inhibition of a Helicobacter pylori activity. However, the method of treating ulcer in a patient using the same prior art compound would inherently inhibit a urease activity and a Helicobacter pylori activity, since Helicobacter pylori is commonly known to be the cause of ulcer. This is also specifically described on page 28, lines 3-6 of the specification.
